Avarice IS OUR SIN

Bishop Gailor Declares It Cause of Lynchings.

MEANS END OF THE REPUBLIC

Pleads for Personal Responsibility on Part of Citizens—Bishop Burton Will Ask for $50,000 to Carry On Missionary Work in Kentucky Mountains—Meeting Well Attended.

Speaking as "an American," "a Christian American," and as a "churchman," before the thank offering mass meeting of the Diocese of Washington in Epiphany Church last evening, Rt. Rev. Thomas F. Gailor, D. D., Bishop of Tennessee, directly defended the views of Benjamin B. Thurman, the Senator from South Carolina, on the lynch law question. In a sweeping denunciation of avarice, the avarice that brings grief to republics—Bishop Gailor said:

"Avarice touches the jury and makes it forget its oath. The criminal is acquitted. Then the people lynch him—and why not?"

"The curse that has come to every republic is that covetousness that struggles over the distribution of wealth. It has caused the destruction of every republic to the present century. We are young yet, but remember that there was one republic that lived for 400 years, Avarice ate the heart out of the republic of the Middle Ages.

The bishop said that this avarice destroys individual responsibility—the backbone of patriotism—and it is evident in this republic of ours. All the institutions of the day breed this irresponsibility; the trusts, the mergers, the corporate wealth, and, to sum up, the general chase for personal riches. He spoke of the avarice and the irresponsibility of the newspapers that print scandal without the slightest foundation in fact, no matter how fantastic, of the avarice in the family—that basis of all civilization—and of the changes it has brought in business life.

Each Should Do Part.

"Personal responsibility is the hope of the nation and the hope of the church. Let each man do his part. I would rather 100 men give a dollar each than one man give $100. The appeal of the thank offering is an appeal of patriotism."

The bishop also spoke of this avarice in elections and of the men of convictions. He said that Northern essayists are telling us that these men, so common in the South, are no more. These picturesque characters who held their convictions inviolable, above everything else, grow fewer, but let them die, let us have more of them. We need these men. If every man could realize in politics his own personal responsibility, when he comes to vote as he thinks best he will not take into consideration mere politics, but will work for his native land. The destiny of the republic rests in the patriotism in the nation and in the church. The missionary appeal is an appeal to patriotism.

Second Thank Meeting.

Last evening's was the second meeting to promote the missionary thank offering of the Episcopal Church to be held in this city. It is similar to other meetings held throughout the United States, and is in celebration of the 30th anniversary of the beginning of Christianity in America, growing from the settlement of Jamestown to the exposition during the coming summer, when the offering will be put at the disposal of the board of missions.

Bishop Satterlee, of the Diocese of Washington, presided. He congratulated the large number present on the fact that it was evident they were not fair weather Christians.

Rt. Rev. L. W. Burton, D. D., Bishop of Lexington, also delivered a sermon on the thank offering. He showed by experience in his own diocese how badly the offering is needed for missionary work, and declared his intention of asking for $50,000 of the amount "to carry our religion and our education to the mountains of Kentucky." He pointed out in a lucid way how it is needed and would be welcomed with open arms. He told of the Northern Methodists, the Southern Methodists, the Baptists, and others who are building schools and missions on the northern branch of the Big Sandy River, and said, "We hold the strategic point in Corbin, the town that is progressing beyond all the surrounding country."

SCORES PUBLIC OWNERSHIP.

Rev. G. W. King Denounces It as Worst Form of Despotism.

"Model Masters and Servants" was the subject of the last of a series of lectures delivered by Rev. George W. King, at the Dumbarton M. E. Church, last night. A large audience heard the speaker sum up the question by saying that servants should serve their masters as unto Christ, and that masters should treat servants as friends, treating them as they expect to be treated and always giving them a good example.

The difficulty of labor and capital was also briefly discussed by the preacher, who said that the only solution of the question was the strict adherence to Christian principles as set down in the Bible. He denounced government ownership as the worst form of despotism and expressed himself rather in favor of greater democracy. The cry of absolute equality of right, he declared visionary and a condition sought after only by those whose minds were unbalanced and by those who desired the overthrow of the state, the home, and the church. In conclusion he said that the only brotherhood that could ever exist between capital and labor was that based on the Fatherhood of Christ.

ART CRITIC TO LECTURE.

Father Ingelgem To-day Starts Series at Academy of Visitation.

Rev. A. J. Van Ingelgem will give a course of lectures at the Academy of Visitation in Georgetown, the initial lecture to be given this afternoon.

Father Van Ingelgem in his early life was a well known art critic in Brussels, had served on a number of municipal art commissions, and is a lecturer of eminent ability, whose services have been in great demand by art schools.

He is now staying at the Apostolic Mission House, and is associated with the Virginia apostolate. His lectures will cover the Trecento period and the causes of Renaissance painting, the Quattro Cento especially, the schools of Florence, Umbria, and Venice, and the Madonnas of Giovanni Bellini, Claude Lorraine, treating of the Roman school, represented by Raphael and Guilio Romano; Milan school, by Leonardo da Vinci and Bernardino Luini; Florence school, by Michael Angelo; Venetian school, by Titian and Giorgione; and Parma school, by Correggio.

Father O'Donovan Tells of Work Done by Americans at Kingston.

Talks Before Aloysius Club, Describing Scenes During Earthquake and Relief Afforded.

The Rev. J. O'Donovan, S. J., gave a short talk before the Aloysius Club yesterday afternoon on the Jamaica earthquake, of which he was an eyewitness, being at Kingston at the time on a lecture tour. He narrated the incidents of the earthquake which overtook the city as he was in the act of showing some of the Jamaican government officials through the convent, schools, and hospitals attached to the Holy Trinity Cathedral, which, in connection with all the other buildings of the Jesuit community in Kingston, fell a victim to the earthquake. Father O'Donovan said:

"It was a joy and pleasure to see, at 11:30 o'clock on the evening of January 15, the searchlights of the American ships off the coast of the island of Jamaica, the Jamaican government officials through the convent, schools, and hospitals attached to the Holy Trinity Cathedral, which, in connection with all the other buildings of the Jesuit community in Kingston, fell a victim to the earthquake. COR. 7th & EYE (11) STREETS, N.W.

So Speculation Is at Fault as to Beveridge-Bryan Debate.

The List of Subjects Not Yet Definitely Decided On, but Some Surprises Expected.

Considerable comment was heard about the city yesterday on the announcement, made exclusively in The Herald, to the effect that a year-long debate had been arranged between W. J. Bryan and Senator Albert J. Beveridge. The statement that the debate was contracted for by a leading magazine set people guessing as to which one of the magazines had secured such an interesting feature as this promises to be, and the guessers were further confounded by the fact that the publishers of many of the high-class magazines happened to be in Washington Saturday to attend the Gridiron dinner.

Among the prominent men connected with the magazines who were in the city were J. O. Cosgrove, editor-in-chief of Everybody's; Joseph Sears, president of D. Appleton & Co., New York, and editor of Appleton's Magazine; Col. George Harvey, of Harper & Bros., editor of Harper's Weekly and the North American Review; George Horace Lorimer, editor of the Saturday Evening Post; Will Irwin, of McClure's Magazine; Arthur S. Little, publisher of Pearson's; James Creelman, of the editorial staff of that publication, and David Graham Phillips, who is connected with the Cosmopolitan.

With this array of magazine talent in Washington it seemed hard to pick a winner, and on the subject as to which one of the magazines was successful Senator Beveridge maintained silence. He said that both himself and Mr. Bryan had pledged not to give the name of the magazine in which the debate would occur until it was first announced by the publishers. The Senator also declared that the list of topics for debate had not yet been decided upon, but that many of them would be found to be far from the conventional political subject, and would doubtless cause some surprise.

He understood that Mr. Bryan had a number of new theories on rendering the best service in his power to alleviate the sufferings of the stricken people.

Father O'Donovan concluded his address by extending an invitation to the members to present themselves in large numbers at the Aloysius Club minstrel show, which is to be given for the earthquake sufferers at Gonzaga Hall on Wednesday evening.
